

Multiple Choice (10 marks)

1. The advanced directive where one specifies the types of medical intervention that are and are not desired is called a
 - (a) Living will
 - (b) DNH
 - (c) DNR
 - (d) Durable power of attorney
2. The term "work-family conflict" for middle-aged adults can occur when they must
 - (a) Care for an ailing parent while continuing to work
 - (b) Work a high stress job while their children are at home
 - (c) Pay for nursing home care by sacrificing their own care
 - (d) Serving as an executor of their parent's estate while still working full time
3. What is a virus pandemic?
 - (a) A sharp and rapid epidemic involving more than one country
 - (b) An outbreak which recurs again and again
 - (c) A rapid global outbreak starting from a single focus
 - (d) A characteristic of common cold virus and HIV
4. How is the parvovirus family targeted to reduce disease?
 - (a) Transfusion blood is screened
 - (b) Vaccine has been developed
 - (c) A range of new antivirals
 - (d) Social distancing
5. The most important goal of a behavioral intervention is:
 - (a) Change in behavior
 - (b) Comprehensive coverage
 - (c) Effective use of behavioral theory
 - (d) Sustained behavior change

True / False (10 marks)

Answer True or False

6. True or False: Impaired renal function is not a common symptom associated with diseases caused by bunyaviruses.
7. True or False: A patient with this injury will be unable to breathe without life support, leading to immediate respiratory failure.
8. True or False: The phase of grieving known as disorganization and despair is typically the longest phase in the grieving process.
9. True or False: Excess disability is characterized by symptoms that are found only in the last stage of Alzheimer's disease.
10. True or False: Blood samples are not used for diagnosing hepatitis B infections.

Long Form Response (20 marks)

Answer each question with a clear and complete explanation.

11. Discuss the geometric structures of virus nucleocapsids, focusing on the differences between icosahedral and helical forms, and analyze their implications for viral function and infection.
12. Discuss the role of the vagus nerves in relation to the oesophagus as it passes through the diaphragm, including their anatomical significance and implications for health.

End of Paper