

Multiple Choice

1. Answer: A

Options: A) increased use of imported or "exotic" materials; B) strict dietary restrictions and limitations.; C) careful planning and scheduling.; D) reliance on food storage and preservation.; E) focusing on one specific type of food source.

Note: Opportunistic foraging refers to the practice of utilizing available resources, including imported or "exotic" materials, to maximize efficiency and adapt to changing environmental conditions or resource availability.

2. Answer: A

Options: A) elite mismanagement; B) resource depletion; C) natural disasters; D) cultural assimilation; E) technological advancement

Note: Joseph Tainter's analysis of the collapse of ancient civilizations focuses on factors such as resource depletion, increasing complexity, and societal responses, rather than attributing collapse directly to elite mismanagement.

3. Answer: C

Options: A) had to pay a high tax in goods and labor to the local governor.; B) lived under constant threat of being sold into slavery.; C) were mostly left alone and did fairly well for themselves.; D) were under the direct control of the high priest, who demanded regular sacrifices.; E) were heavily policed by the king's guards to prevent any form of uprising.

Note: The correct answer reflects the fact that rural commoners in Aztec society, particularly in villages like Capilco and Cuexcomate, experienced relative autonomy and prosperity due to their ability to manage local agricultural production and maintain their own social structures without significant interference from the central authorities.

4. Answer: D

Options: A) Madagascar; B) Australia; C) Hawaii; D) New Zealand; E) The Maldives

Note: New Zealand was among the last major landmasses to be settled by humans, with Polynesians arriving around 1250-1300 CE, making it significantly later than other regions inhabited by humans.

5. Answer: D

Options: A) stopped all forms of art and music; B) fasted for long periods; C) built monumental structures; D) sacrificed adults and occasionally children; E) burnt their own houses to the ground

Note: The correct answer is supported by archaeological evidence and historical accounts indicating that the Minoans engaged in human sacrifices, particularly of adults and sometimes children, as ritualistic practices aimed at appeasing their deities during times of crisis.
