

Multiple Choice

1. Answer: B

Options: A) They serve four-year terms that coincide with the presidential term.; B) They are appointed for life and can only be removed by impeachment.; C) They are elected by Congress and serve ten-year terms.; D) They are appointed for life and cannot be removed from office.

Note: Federal judges are appointed for life to ensure judicial independence and can only be removed through the impeachment process, which protects them from political pressures.

2. Answer: C

Options: A) It was the first time the US became involved in the Balkans; B) It was the first time NATO used military force; C) It was the first war won by airpower alone; D) It was the first war to employ 'smart weapons'

Note: The NATO intervention in Kosovo was unique because it marked the first instance in modern warfare where a military campaign achieved its objectives solely through aerial bombardment, without a significant ground invasion, highlighting the effectiveness of airpower in contemporary conflict.

3. Answer: A

Options: A) administer elections; B) impose taxes; C) establish courts; D) borrow money

Note: The correct answer is "administer elections" because while both national and state governments have powers, the administration of elections is primarily a state responsibility as outlined by the U.S. Constitution, which grants states the authority to regulate the time, place, and manner of elections within their borders.

4. Answer: C

Options: A) limit the number of appeals filed by defendants in state courts; B) extend voting rights to racial minorities and women; C) apply most Bill of Rights protections to state law; D) hasten the integration of public schools

Note: The Supreme Court has employed selective incorporation through the Fourteenth Amendment's Due Process Clause to extend most protections outlined in the Bill of Rights to apply to state laws, thereby ensuring that individual rights are safeguarded from infringement by state governments.

5. Answer: C

Options: A) a pardon lasts 10 years, while a reprieve lasts one year; B) a reprieve grants a release from legal punishment, while a pardon postpones it; C) a pardon grants a release from legal punishment while a reprieve postpones it; D) only state governors can issue pardons

Note: A pardon completely absolves an individual of legal consequences for a crime, effectively canceling the punishment, while a reprieve temporarily delays the enforcement of a sentence without removing the conviction.

True / False

6. Answer: False

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: The Reorganization Plan 1 of 1939 did not grant the president the authority to select members for the Senate Committee on Appropriations, as such appointments are constitutionally reserved for the Senate itself.

7. Answer: True

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: Postcolonialism typically identifies three primary forms of violence: structural, cultural, and direct violence, with pervasive violence not being recognized as one of these distinct categories.

8. Answer: True

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: Interest groups typically concentrate on specific issues or interests that appeal to a narrower segment of the population, rather than seeking to attract a wide and diverse audience.

9. Answer: True

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: The Tenth Amendment explicitly states that powers not granted to the federal government nor prohibited to the states are reserved for the states and the people, thereby reinforcing the principle of federalism by delineating the distribution of power between national and state governments.

10. Answer: False

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: A 'pocket veto' occurs when the president does not sign a bill into law within ten days while Congress is adjourned, rather than publicly rejecting it.

Long Form Response

11. Answer: The concept of 'deepening and broadening' of security in political science refers to the expansion of security studies beyond traditional military concerns to include a wider array of issues such as economic stability, environmental sustainability, human rights, and health security. This evolving framework acknowledges that security is not solely about the absence of war but also encompasses the well-being of individuals and communities. The deepening aspect emphasizes the need to consider the underlying causes of insecurity, while broadening highlights the importance of integrating diverse dimensions such as social, political, and ecological factors. Together, these dimensions contribute to a more holistic understanding of security, reflecting the interconnectedness of global challenges in the contemporary world. Thus, security studies must adapt to include these multifaceted issues to effectively address the complexities of modern threats.

Note: correct because it accurately identifies the shift in security studies from a narrow focus on military threats to a broader understanding that includes economic, environmental, and social dimensions, thereby reflecting a comprehensive approach to human security and well-being.

12. Answer: Political action committees (PACs) play a significant role in the electoral process by raising funds to influence elections at federal, state, and local levels. They collect contributions from individuals and organizations, which are then distributed to candidates who align with their interests or policy goals. By financing campaign efforts, PACs can enhance a candidate's visibility and viability, thereby shaping the political landscape in favor of specific agendas. Additionally, the ability of PACs to mobilize resources effectively allows them to impact voter perceptions and outcomes, making them a powerful force in elections. Overall, PACs are instrumental in bridging the gap between financial resources and political influence, thereby playing a crucial role in the democratic process.

Note: The answer correctly identifies the crucial functions of PACs in the electoral process, emphasizing their role in fundraising and candidate support, which ultimately influences election outcomes and promotes specific political agendas at all government levels.
