

Multiple Choice

1. Answer: D

Options: A) favors incumbent candidates over challengers; B) can divide like-minded voters into several districts to reduce their influence; C) has been allowed by the Supreme Court in some instances; D) increases the control voters have over their elected officials

Note: Gerrymandering manipulates electoral district boundaries to favor one political party over another, thereby diminishing voters' control over their elected officials by distorting representation and reducing electoral competitiveness.

2. Answer: B

Options: A) Armed conflict; B) Anarchy; C) Institutions; D) No common language

Note: The correct answer is "anarchy" because realists argue that the international system lacks a central authority to enforce rules and maintain order, in contrast to the domestic system, which is governed by a structured legal framework and a sovereign power.

3. Answer: C

Options: A) IV only; B) II and III; C) I, II, and III; D) I, II, III, and IV

Note: The correct answer is I, II, and III because the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the International Monetary Fund (IMF), and the World Bank are all key institutions established to promote international trade, financial stability, and economic development, which are foundational elements of the liberal international economic order, while NATO is primarily a military alliance and not focused on economic governance.

4. Answer: D

Options: A) the Powell Doctrine.; B) the Roosevelt Doctrine.; C) the Bush Doctrine.; D) the Monroe Doctrine.

Note: The Monroe Doctrine, articulated in 1823 by President James Monroe, established the principle that European powers should refrain from interfering in the affairs of Latin American countries, asserting a protective stance over the Western Hemisphere.

5. Answer: C

Options: A) The arms trade shifts from being a private to a government controlled enterprise.; B) An increase in the defence trade.; C) A decrease in the arms trade.; D) A growth in the number and variety of weapons traded.

Note: The correct answer is that a decrease in the arms trade did not emerge as a trend in the 20th century because, in fact, the global arms trade expanded significantly during this period due to various geopolitical tensions and conflicts.

True / False

6. Answer: False

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: The statement is false because the media actively publicizes a wide array of political opinions and issues, thereby influencing public discourse and shaping the political agenda rather than refusing to cover political content.

7. Answer: False

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: Sanctions are typically considered a coercive measure aimed at altering a state's behavior rather than a form of diplomatic engagement, which generally involves negotiation and dialogue.

8. Answer: True

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: The trade of oil and other natural resources often provides significant revenue for developing states, which can strengthen existing regimes by enabling them to maintain power, invest in security forces, and quell dissent, thereby promoting stability.

9. Answer: False

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: The statement is false because federalism refers to the division of power between national and state governments, while checks and balances specifically pertain to the mechanisms within the national government to prevent any branch from gaining too much power.

10. Answer: True

Options: A) True; B) False

Note: Interest groups are prohibited from giving tangible gifts to lawmakers due to legal regulations aimed at preventing corruption and ensuring transparency in the legislative process.

Long Form Response

11. Answer: Britain's decision to impose new taxes on its American colonies was largely driven by the financial burdens resulting from the costly war with France, known as the French and Indian War (1754-1763). The war significantly increased Britain's national debt, and the government sought to alleviate this financial strain by generating revenue from the colonies, which had benefited from British military protection. This led to the introduction of taxes such as the Stamp Act and the Townshend Acts, which aimed to raise funds for the maintenance of British troops in North America. Politically, these measures incited widespread resentment among colonists, who viewed the taxes as unfair and a violation of their rights, ultimately contributing to rising tensions that would culminate in the American Revolution. Thus, the imposition of new taxes was both a response to financial exigencies and a catalyst for political upheaval in the colonies.

Note: correct because it identifies the financial strain caused by the French and Indian War as the primary motivation for Britain to impose new taxes on the American colonies, which aimed to generate revenue to address the increased national debt while also highlighting the political implications of colonial resistance to these measures.

12. Answer: Historical materialism faces significant criticisms, particularly regarding its interpretation of capitalism and class struggle. Critics argue that it often portrays capitalism as purely self-serving, neglecting the complexity of economic interactions and the potential for cooperative behavior within the capitalist framework. Additionally, its emphasis on class struggle as the primary driver of historical change can oversimplify social dynamics, disregarding other factors such as culture, ideology, and individual agency. Furthermore, some proponents of historical materialism assert that they have identified objective historical laws that govern societal development, yet these claims are disputed due to their deterministic nature and lack of empirical support. This challenges the validity of historical materialism as a comprehensive analytical tool in understanding the nuances of societal evolution.

Note: correct because it effectively identifies the criticisms of historical materialism regarding its reductionist view of capitalism and class struggle, highlighting the oversimplification of social dynamics and the neglect of other influential factors.