

Multiple Choice (10 marks)

1. _____ is a communication disorder that is characterized by difficulties in regulating the rate, rhythm, pitch, and loudness of speech.
 - (a) Dysphagia
 - (b) Aphasia
 - (c) Dysphonia
 - (d) Dyspraxia
 - (e) Dyslexia
2. The scoring criterion categories for the Exner Scoring System used to score the Rorschach Inkblot Test include all of the following except:
 - (a) Texture
 - (b) Location
 - (c) Popular
 - (d) Shape
 - (e) Orientation
3. Research on the counseling of minority group member clients indicates that they
 - (a) are more likely to seek group counseling than individual counseling
 - (b) remain in counseling for approximately the same length of time as nonminority clients
 - (c) terminate counseling significantly earlier than do non-minority clients
 - (d) seek counseling services at the same rate as non-minority clients
4. Kohlberg's cognitive-developmental theory identifies which of the following as the initial stage of gender-role acquisition?
 - (a) gender identity
 - (b) gender neutrality
 - (c) gender assimilation
 - (d) gender fluidity
 - (e) gender affirmation
5. based upon reward or punishment or based upon a need to know. Distinguish on a more specific plane between the three kinds of responses to social influence.

- (a) Conformity, association, and adaptation
- (b) Agreement, alliance, and absorption
- (c) Compliance, identification, and internalization
- (d) Submission, emulation, and inculcation
- (e) Adherence, affiliation, and incorporation

True / False (10 marks)

Answer True or False

6. True or False: Low levels of melatonin are known to cause symptoms similar to those of anxiety in individuals.
7. True or False: The spinal cord primarily stores memories and processes complex cognitive functions in the brain.
8. True or False: The frontal lobe is situated at the most central and protected part of the brain, responsible for higher cognitive functions.
9. True or False: Schizophrenia and manic-depressive psychosis are two of the most common types of functional psychoses in clinical practice.
10. True or False: Hersey and Blanchard's situational leadership model suggests a participative style for subordinates with low ability and high motivation.

Long Form Response (20 marks)

Answer each question with a clear and complete explanation.

11. Discuss the effects of castration on sexual behavior in highly developed primates compared to less developed animals, analyzing the implications for understanding human sexuality.
12. Discuss how the Gestalt organizing principles of perception, particularly proximity, influence our interpretation of ambiguous visual stimuli, using the example of the word "i n c a r n a t e."

End of Paper