

Multiple Choice (10 marks)

1. Loss of stomach lining can lead to symptoms that resemble
 - (a) Diabetes
 - (b) Dementia
 - (c) Osteoporosis
 - (d) Tuberculosis
 - (e) Hepatitis
2. Which of the following age differences could be, in part, a cohort effect? Differences in
 - (a) Heart Disease
 - (b) Alcoholism
 - (c) Suicide
 - (d) Diabetes
 - (e) Depression
3. Parasympathetic preganglionic nerves leave the central nervous system with the
 - (a) eighth cranial nerves.
 - (b) second cranial nerves.
 - (c) first cranial nerves.
 - (d) fifth cranial nerves.
 - (e) sixth cranial nerves.
4. The houses of the future may allow you to operate virtually everything in the house from a central terminal; such a house is already in production and is...
 - (a) Remotehouse
 - (b) E-House
 - (c) Digitalhouse
 - (d) Compuhouse
 - (e) Autohouse
5. What is the risk if water is used for bladder washout in secondary care?
 - (a) The medical staff may be unhappy.
 - (b) The patient may experience discomfort.
 - (c) Fluid may bypass when the washout is carried out.
 - (d) Using water may cause a urinary tract infection.
 - (e) There is no risk in using water for bladder washout.

True / False (10 marks)

Answer True or False and justify briefly.

1. True or False: The correct answer to 'Which of the following is recommended for cleaning the mouth?' is 'Alcohol swabs.'.
2. True or False: The correct answer to 'Which of the following will be increased in vitamin K deficiency' is 'The time for blood to clot'.
3. True or False: The correct answer to 'One of the most common reasons for stoma formation is:' is 'gallstones.'.
4. True or False: The correct answer to 'Primary motor cortex activity results in' is 'relaxation of ipsilateral limb musculature.'.
5. True or False: The correct answer to 'The following amino acids are all essential components of the diet:' is 'leucine, methionine and threonine'.

Long Form Response (20 marks)

Provide thorough reasoning and reference key steps.

1. Which of the following is true about the carpal tunnel syndrome?
2. The pattern of inheritance shown by malignant hyperthermia (hyperpyrexia) is:

End of Paper